

NTPU Law Review
Guidelines for Contributors

- Article 1 NTPU Law Review (hereafter ‘the Review’ ), starting from its 58th issue, publishes four issues per year, in March, June, September and December respectively.
- Article 2 Manuscripts of academic articles on law, case analyses, book reviews, and translated articles are all invited; the contributor must specify to which of the four categories the manuscript belongs. Manuscripts without correct format, submitted elsewhere simultaneously, published elsewhere in whole or in major portions or refused by the Review according to Article 5 will be rejected for publication.
- Article 3 Manuscripts in either Chinese or English are accepted. For translated articles, contributors must include a copy of the original article and the author’ s written authorization. If manuscripts are written by more than two authors, please state clearly the proportion of the contribution and the responsible work of each author. Once manuscripts are accepted, the main text, notes and references should be modified according to the format required by the Review.
- Article 4 Manuscripts should include the author’ s name, institution served, job title, title of the manuscript, approximately ten key words, abstracts no more than 500 words, in Chinese and foreign language respectively. Contributors must affix the address, telephone number and e-mail.
- Article 5 Manuscripts submitted shall be preliminarily reviewed by the editorial board and then reviewed anonymously and bi-directionally by two qualified instructors with appropriate expertise; contributors will be notified of the results promptly. The Review reserves the right to determine to which categories the manuscript accepted for publication belongs. Once a manuscript is withdrawn after the beginning of the review process, the Review will regard it as a decision of refusal.
- Article 6 Once a manuscript is published, responsibility for the factual accuracy of the paper rests upon its author(s). In principle, the Review provides no payment for contributions; however, twenty off-prints will be supplied to the authors free of charge.
- Article 7 The Review, starting from its 56th issue, also publishes an e-journal (the website: <http://readopac2.ncl.edu.tw/ncl3/index.jsp> ) . From that issue, authors of the manuscripts accepted for publication must agree that the Review is entitled to delegate the National Library or other databases providers the rights of reproducing, providing service through the internet, authorizing users to download, print, and brows, etc., and modifying the format in consistent with the databases’ requirements. Starting from the 66th issue, authors should submit the above agreements or authorizations with the manuscripts. If authors fail to do so, manuscripts submitted will not enter into the process of substantive review.
- Article 8 Manuscripts submitted will be reviewed on the first come, first review basis and there is no deadline for accepting manuscripts. The Review will publish manuscripts in accordance with the order of submitting and revising. If an author does not reply within 3 months after sending the notice of revision by the Review, the Review will regard it as a decision of refusal.

Once a manuscript is withdrawn after the beginning of the review process, or a manuscript is proven to be submitted to more than one reviews or journals, the Review may refuse to accept any manuscript submitted by that author within 3 years.

The editing copyrights of manuscripts published by the Review shall belong to the Review and the manuscripts shall not be republished unless agreed by the Review.

Article 9 Manuscripts must be type written, in Microsoft Office (word 7.0) in principle. Three hard copies should be sent to ‘The editorial board of NTPU Law Review’, College of Law, National Taipei University. The electrical format edition and manuscripts submitted from outside Taiwan, please e-mail to: ntpulr@mail.ntpu.edu.tw.